Lehi City, Utah | Thursday, July 12, 2012 — Lehi City's annual Foam Day event will take place on Saturday, July 21, 2012 at the Lehi Sports Park located at 700 South 2000 West. The event begins at 11:00 a.m. with water blow-up toys, shopping, entertainment and more. Free watermelon will be served by Macey's in the afternoon and the featured "foam" spraying will take place from 2-4:00 p.m.

"Foam Day is in its fourth year and we have already quadrupled the attendance. It has quickly become a big and exciting event for our community," said Mayor Bert Wilson.

This free event is held in celebration of Pioneer Day and takes place on the Saturday before July 24th. It began as an idea from City Councilmember Johnny Revill when he attended a similar event in a smaller community in Idaho. The first Foam Day in Lehi City was well attended and enjoyed by residents, so City staff has made an effort to continue to grow the event each year.

"Lehi City is growing quickly and we've had some really exciting things happen recently in our community. We like to hold events like Foam Day to show that we still have a small town family friendly feel," said Mayor Bert Wilson.
